HUSTONVILLE, LINCOLN COUNTY

Bro. Hale is continuing his meeting at the Baptist church, preaching morning and night. Dr. Cox preached at the Christian church Sunday afternoon.

Bishop and Alkin's traction engine train is exciting as much interest as a circus. Its progress along the highways has been thus far attended with no accident.

The West Enders are meeting the expediency of organizing a ball club for the purpose of redeeming the reputation of the county. The only objection urged is that the game can not be played during

A large number of friends of the deceased from this place and surrounding country—the home of his boyhood—attended the obsequies of Judge Brown on Sunday. His death seems to be deeply felt and and sincerely deplored in all parts of the county. His family have the warmest sympathy as far as his genial nature, his kindly spirit and his blameless life were known. His work was arrested at a period comparatively early, but he had garnered a noble harvest in the affections of all who knew him.

J. B. Green has not yet returned from Knoxville. His last report represents his mother as beyond hope of recovery. Mrs. Brent Bennett, who has been sick a long time, is not materially improved. Mrs. Woods, our postmistress, has been confined by sickness for some time, but is reported better. Mrs. S. Owens has recovered from a severe attack of cholera morbus. Her child is still sick. The Rev. R. L. Tucker, who was injured in the runaway accident last week, are all doing well. Urish Dunn and son started for South Carolina last week with a carload of horses. The address for the present is Barnwell.

EAST BERNSTADT, JEFFERSON COUNTY.

Police Judge, T. L. Davis, has resigned his position as Judge of the place.

Don't forget the hop at the Hayzen Hotel Wednesday evening at 7 p. m. A social invitation is extended to all.

The Altamont Coal Co., continues to increase their capacity. They are now loading from 18 to 22 cars, an average of nearly 10,000 bushels per day. The Livingston Coal Co., we learn, are now making preparations to ship coal direct from their mines to all points on the Kentucky Central Railroad.

I had the pleasure of attending one of Mrs. Lula Neill's great temperance meetings at Twin Branch Church last Sunday. Although I traveled over about 12 miles of very rough road, I considered myself well paid for my journey; and I must say to the credit of the congregation of that place that I saw a more quiet place, considering the large crowd. It was estimated by a great many that there was about 1,250 people in attendance.

Miss Lucy Eve, of Harboursville, is visiting Mrs. G. D. Begley. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Farris, of Haccoon Branch, paid Jas. I. Wearden a visit last Saturday. S. J. Farris, of Booneville, was in town last week. T. O. Fain has gone to Jackson county on important business. Mr. H. C. Thompson and wife are taking in the Southern Exposition this week. Mr. J. B. Tye is expected home today. Mr. James E. Durham, of Rockcastle River, is very low with diphtheria. Mr. Moore, who got slightly bruised in the mines the other day, by some scale falling on him, is now able to go around. Mr. Joe Melvin, who has been on the sick list for the past week, is able to be on the street again. Mrs. Kittie Thompson is reported to be improving slowly, after being confined to her room for about 10 months. Squire Jerry Lawson is in town on official business in the place of ex-Judge G. F. Farris.

A Call for Fair Play.

(To the Editor of the Interior Journal.)

Mr. VERNON, Aug. 23.—Your correspondent from this place in an article published in last Tuesday's issue of your paper says that the contest in this county is about equally divided between Gov. McCree and Phil B. Thompson; that the old men are for McCree and the young men for Thompson. And he further says that the friends of Judge Durham come principally from the McCree ranks. Now let's have fair play and, as Gov. Cleveland said, tell the truth. The old men are not only for Gov. McCree, but will work for him, and a great many of the young men are for Gov. McCree also; and the vote is not equally divided between McCree and Thompson, but McCree will get a good big majority in this county. Judge Durham has some friends, but as to his strength coming from the McCree ranks, that is another error your correspondent got into. Gov. McCree is gaining strength daily and will do so from now on. VOTER.

JUST AS GOOD.

Many unscrupulous dealers may tell you they have remedies for Coughs and Colds equal in merit and in every respect just as good as the old reliable Dr. Hancock's Cough and Lung Syrup, unless you insist upon this remedy and will take no other, you are liable to be greatly deceived. Price, 50 cents and $1.00. Sold by McRoberts & Stage.

Democratic Primary Election.

In accordance with the order of the Congressional Committee of the 8th district, which fixed Saturday, September 6th, between the hours of 7 A. M. and 7 P. M., as the time for holding a primary election to nominate a candidate for Congress, I hereby name the officers of said election in the various precincts of Lincoln county and request the gentlemen named to be promptly on hand at the specified time.

Stanford, Sam I. Harris, John A. Allen, John H. Miller, Judge; H. H. Daddier, sheriff; John M. Phillips, clerk.

Hustonville, Perry Land, Jesse Rife and Florence Yowell, judges; James P. Goode, sheriff; Carlisle Reid, clerk.

Tomersville, John O. Neal, Jan. Barley and Clark Cash, judges; Joe M. Carter, sheriff; Robt. Girson, clerk.

Crab Orchard, R. H. Brumagh, John Bailey and A. Carson, judges; Joe M. Higgins, sheriff; W. O. Haddock, clerk.

Walnut Flat, John Lynn John S. Swaley, W. H. Hunt, judges; Pat Naper, sheriff; Myron Colley, clerk.

Waynesburg, Lewis G. Gosh, John L. Ball and David E. Emon, judges; Clark Reynolds, sheriff; E. B. Caldwell, Jr., clerk.

Higland, A. Henry, Jas. Smith and Joe. Baugh, judges; John Carpenter, sheriff; D. A. Baugh, clerk.

The voting is to be viva voce and "all good democrats who have generally voted the democratic ticket are legal voters and all young men who will be qualified voters at the November election and declare an intention to act with the democratic party are qualified voters at this election. The poll books of each precinct are to be signed by the electors and returned to the chairman of the county committee as soon as possible; no later than the second day thereafter.

J. E. LASS, Chairman Dem. Co. Com.

Coming, John B. Doris' Monster Shows.

This mammoth organization which will appear at Stanford Saturday Sept. 6, is without a doubt, one of the largest and best shows that has ever been presented on the road. Read what the Louisville Courier-Journal says:

"John B. Doris' New Monster Shows consolidated with the Great Inter-Ocean, contains all the novelties known to the circus world. The menagerie and ring last season, and now are the completed ever given to the public. No show in the country can surpass Doris' in the extent and variety of its features, and certainly there is no manager who has so uniformly and unvaryingly satisfied his numerous patrons and it is impossible to enumerate all the special attractions of this mammoth show. There are over forty different acts to be seen in three rings and on the elevated stage. These acts embrace, besides the ordinary circus performances of riding, tumbling, leaping, etc., such new and astonishing features as a troupe of performing turks, also in the ring, a sacred white spotted elephant, "Turpentine," aerial bicyclists, roller skaters, trick elephants, trained animals and wild beasts are to be seen in profusion, and every kind of entertainment is included to delight the human heart is to be found under Doris' monster canvas. The press in general is unanimous in declaring it the best circus and menagerie on the road."

They were in the moonlight, and the demon witchery of the hour had touched him, but hadn't quite reached her.

"My dear Miss Annie," he gurgled, "do you know that I love you better than anyone else in the world?"

"You have told me so, Mr. Softhead," she answered in a tone of doubt.

"And do you believe me?"

"Well, I suppose I'll have to. They say, you know, that children and fools tell the truth, and you are no child, Mr. Softhead."

A cloud passed over the moon, and the young man escaped in the darkness— [Merchant Traveler]

BRIGHT'S DISEASE—A double handful of healthy pods of common white soup beans or corn beans boiled slowly for three hours in three quarts of water until it is reduced to three pints. Take hot or cold. Take no other drink. This simple remedy is claimed to have effected cures in Bright's disease as well as in dropsy.

A million dollars in gold coin weighs 3,685.5 pounds, in silver coin 35,273.9 pounds; a ton of gold is worth $902,700.21, and one of silver $37,701.81.

FREE DISTRIBUTION.

"What causes the great rush at McRoberts & Stage's Drug Store?" The free distribution of sample bottles of Dr. Hancock's Cough and Lung Syrup, the most popular remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption and Bronchitis now on the market. Regular size 50 cents and $1.00.

CURE FOR PILES.

Piles are frequently treated by a local surgeon in the back, lobes and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A medicine, like purgation, producing a very disagreeable itching, after getting warm, is a very common attendant. Hired, bleeding and itching Piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Hancock's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching and affording a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address the Dr. Hancock Medicine Co., Piquette, Ohio. Sold by McRoberts & Stage.

SWITZERLAND.

AS SEEN BY GEO. O. BARNES

"PRAISE THE LORD"

PREMIER JOUR, (on the Juras) CANTON VAND, SWITZERLAND, July 12th, 1884.

Two days only, we remained at Lausanne and then accompanied the dear Dufours to their mountain retreat, described geographically as above. A "pue" is a mountain meadow, "Joux" is the district we have come to. Over the high range visible from our back window lies the "Lac de Joux" (or lake of Joux, still in the same precinct. This part of the Swiss territory is devoted almost exclusively to grazing purposes and the manufacture of cheese. The elevation of our pleasant location is between 5 and 6 thousand feet. The range of mountains is that of the Juras, as distinct from the Alps. The air is very pure and bracing.

We arrived at Lausanne on Wednesday and left Friday. Ten miles of railway journey helped us a good deal. It brought us to the station of Cossonay, lying at the foot of a great hill, on the summit of which the quaint old town of the same name does away a retired existence; the entrance and exit of the diligence, apparently being the greatest item of its daily life. Here Vernon and I equipped ourselves, as did the ladies, with straw hats at a cost of 70 centimes (14 cents) each, and it was a good bargain as we afterwards discovered. A draught of goat's milk, which a residence in Mexico when a young man accustomed me to, so that I almost learned to like the rank flavored stuff, I reached thirst nicely, and we rattled out of Cossonay in good spirits with a four-hour drive before us. It took two vehicles to accommodate the party. M. Dufour, his three daughters, a German lady friend whom Vernon and I called "Mademoiselle" and the rest "Amelia," and whose real full name I declined to commit to memory, with Vernon closely filled the interior of one vehicle. I sat on the box with the coachman. The other "trap" was a sort of spring wagon, one seated and filled with boxes and bags, multi-colored, and Julie, the cook, besides the driver. Julie is past middle age and an indispensable oddity in the Dufour domestic economy. To see her wrestling with our appalling multiplicity of packages at the railway station, with Miss Helene, pencil in hand, checking off the list she had thoughtfully taken at Lausanne before starting, and the good old woman's sigh of relief when none "turned up missing," would have been a subject for a painter. Our driver was the image of our old friend Jimmy Owens, and we "took to him" at once for his resemblance, that stirred so many "loving memories." He drove a good strong span of horses and did it well. But he had a queer way of making them "get up." It was not the "cluck" that horsemen at home are familiar with, but a sort of suppressed "poo-wee," very like the sound we make in calling up pigs to their supper or breakfast, only not so loud. The horses perfectly understood it, and responded in quickened gait, only it seemed very strange to me how they could get anything out of such a sound to stimulate them to "noble deeds."

After topping the Cossonay hill by a beautiful winding road—perfectly macadamized, and lined with noble cherry trees from which the fruit has been lately plucked—we struck across a lovely valley of eight or ten miles in width, that was cultivated like a garden, with pretty villages at short intervals, nestling in orchards of pears and apples and cherries, "as pretty as a picture." Up and over the gently undulating surface "Jimmy" drove us, slowly walking his team up the little hills and then with a "poo-wee" away they would go down hill, or on the level in a long sweeping trot that pleasantly stirred the warm air and fanned our heated faces most delightfully. The villages are all the same, built of stone rough and smooth; roofs of red tiles; streets crooked and narrow; very clean to look at externally; fountains gushing at convenient intervals and running day and night from water brought down from the contiguous mountains in underground pipes; sometimes a pretty stream meandering through to add its charm to the other pleasant features, and all very inviting and cozy and homelike. One detestable drawback, and the universal one of Swiss villages, the manure heap is ever in the most conspicuous place and apparently the most cherished "institution" of Swiss domestic economy. It is usually about 20 feet square and varying height, with regular layers and finished neatly all round with long straw doubled and tucked between the edges of the successive strata, exactly as apples are confined when in the cider press ready for "squeezing." The process is that of leaching. It is the liquid manure they want and every drop is carefully stored in cisterns to be carted to the fields in long barrels and ladled out upon the impoverished ground. The solid portions when duly rotted are also utilized and distributed. These agricultural "savings banks" are the source of the abundant crops, that make a Swiss village a thing of beauty and "a joy forever" to look upon. The Swiss are eminently "utilitarians" and apparently without fastidious olfactory nerves. What to them is an unsavory odor from this reeking pile at every door? Is it not the storehouse of all substantial temporal blessing? Why should it not have the place of honor and be where they can always see it and even smell it—perpetual reminder to every sense of the riches in present and prospective possession? And so they are proud of their dung heaps, they gloat over them, they compare them as we compare carriages or houses or villas or lawns or farms; they delight in the growing size of the unsavory mass; they pat it and pat it and seem never to dream that it can possibly have an offensive feature about it; only its beauties are seen, for love is ever blind, whatever its object. Really, I learned not a little lesson, as I pondered on this fondness for manure exhibited by this very neat and cleanly people. It was something fresh, if not refreshing to one who had always cherished the thought that such things were beat in back stable yards. But the Swiss farmer is not ashamed of his best friend, but glories in him, and parades him fondly "under your very nose"—emphatically—and says in other terms "love me, love my dog." You must take both or leave both, for we are inseparable. It astonishes me to think how my own disgust has worked so quickly away as it has done; partly perhaps because I have a very plebeian proboscis that rather refuses to smell anything less odoriferous than a pink or an old fashioned rose, or a marigold and whose very coarseness, though it loses some delicate fragrance has proved rather "a blessing in disguise" in this world where one has ten had smells to one good one, but chiefly, I believe by putting myself in a Swiss peasant's place and looking at it from his "common-sense" standpoint. After all how are pleasure and pain, sweet and bitter, fragrance and noxious odor, separated by a wall of tissue paper?

The Assassin of Lincoln.

After his flight from the theatre J. Wilkes Booth was at last discovered in a barn on Garrett's farm, near Port Royal, on the Rappahannock, by Col. Baker, of the Detective Service, supported by fifty men with carbines and pistols. Booth refused to surrender and begged a chance for his life, saying he would never taken be taken alive. Baker replied that he did not come there to fight but to capture him. Immediately Sergeant Conger set fire to the barn. The World's correspondent says: "The blaze lit up the black recesses of the great barn till every wisp's nest and cobweb in the roof was visible, flinging streaks of red and violet across the tumbled farm gear in the corner, and making every separate grain in the bin adjacent gleam like a mote of precious gold. They tinged the beams, the upright columns, the barricades where clover and timothy, piled high, held toward the hot incendiary their separate straws for the funeral pile. At the gleam of the fire, Wilkes dropped his crutch and carbine and on his hands crept to the spot to spy the incendiary and shoot him dead. His eyes were lustrous with fever and swelled and rolled in terrible beauty, and he wore the expression of one in the calmness before frenzy. In vain he peered; the blaze that made him visible concealed his enemy. A second he turned, glaring at the fire as if it leaped upon it and extinguished it, but it had made such headway this was futile, and he abandoned it. As calmly as upon a battle field a veteran stands amidst the hail of ball and shell and plunging iron, Booth turned at a man's stride and pushed for the door, carbine in pole, and with the last resolve of death, which we name despair, set on his high, bloodless forehead." At this instant Sergt. Corbett fired through a crevice into the burning building and shot Booth in the neck. He was carried out and laid upon the grass. He died about four hours after he was shot. His body was taken to Washington City. On the night of the 27th of April a small row-boat received his remains, and no one save two men, it is said, knew the place or manner of his sepulchre.

Of the 111 sessions of Congress, twenty-seven have lasted over 200 days, the last one included. The longest was the first session of the Thirty-first—302 days, from December 3, 1810, to September 30, 1850.

Statistics show that murderers sentenced to prison for life live to an age beyond the average of those who have to work for a living amid the exposures of the outside world.

You Can Have It.

"My dear, what would I give to have your hair?" is often said by middle aged ladies to young ones. Now, you may have just such hair. Parker's Hair Balsam will give it to you. It will stop your hair from falling off, restore the original color and make it long, thick, soft and glossy. You need not stand helplessly by the girls. The Balsam is not oily, not dry, not in an elegant dressing and is especially recommended for cleanliness and purity.

BRIST BUTLER is an exceedingly rich man and like Blaine, obtained his money by the most questionable of means. While in command at New Orleans he issued a proclamation authorizing the soldiery to destroy all cotton found in the city or vicinity after 10 o'clock on the morning of issue. The reason given for the order was that he had heard that it was the purpose of the citizens to sell the cotton and use the proceeds for disloyal purposes. The order of course produced great consternation and every means of getting it out of the way was resorted to. At an opportune moment one of Butler's captains appeared upon the scene and offered to pay five cents per pound for it and assume all risks. He was soon in possession of 20,000 bales and orders were pressing in upon him faster than he could accommodate them. After the scheme had been worked for all it was worth, Butler recinded his proclamation, saying that he had been waited upon by the most influential citizens, who had given him written pledges that no cotton should be used for disloyal purposes. Three hours later cotton was selling for fifteen cents which a short time before was bought at five cents and Butler made a nice business out of it. Can any honest man vote for the dirty old thief, with such a charge proved against him?

THE St. Louis Republican makes a good point when it says that there is one important fact which the traders of Gov. Cleveland are careful to keep out of sight in their personal denigration of him and which even the general public may be inclined to forget. It is not yet two years since he was chosen Governor of New York by the largest majority ever given for a candidate for Governor in this country, and that, too, over a republican opponent of recognized ability and unstained private character. That opponent was Judge Folger, now, as then, Secretary of the Treasury at Washington. It will be said that Cleveland's phenomenal majority of 192,000 in November 1882, can not be claimed either as a measure of the democratic strength in New York, or of his own personal popularity. This is true and we readily admit it. There was great dissatisfaction among republicans at the way in which Judge Folger was nominated through intermeddling of the administration at Washington and it is probable that fully two-thirds of Cleveland's majority represents republicans who voted for him for the purpose of rebuking the administration's interference.

BEGINNING with to-day, the great military drills commence at the Southern Exposition. The companies entered embrace the crack organizations of the West and Southwest. The drills will be under the supervision of three officers of the United States Army and the award of prizes will be made after the grand dress parade, which will be formed at 6 p. m. on the evening of the 28th, on the drill ground south of the main building. Gov. Knott will make the award and the ceremonies connected with this festive feature will be highly attractive. The three prizes offered for the best drilled company will be $3,000, $1,000 and $500 respectively. At 8 o'clock on the same night there will be a brilliant pyrotechnic display, including Paine's military device entitled the S-size of Paris, which is descriptive of the incidents of that terrible struggle. The management is doing everything to make the Exposition a success and it is succeeding admirably. Every man in the State should make it a point to attend at least once during its continuance and no more attractive time will be offered than now.

GEN. TAYLOR, Louisville's pompous Chief of Police, has shown that he is not fit for the position by a coarse attack on Joe J. Eskins, city editor of the Louisville Times, and he ought to resign or be made to step down and out. Mr. Eskins had repeatedly criticized the peculiar methods of the police, as it was his duty to do if the circumstances justified it, and Friday the General took him to task for it, using language that neither an officer nor a gentleman should be guilty of. Mr. Eskins restrained himself, like a law-abiding citizen, and took out warrants against the General for disorderly conduct and trying to provoke an assault. That afternoon a son of Taylor struck Eskins without a word of warning, but in the fight that ensued got much the worst of it. Eskins' course in the matter is as much commended as that of the Taylor, as is commended.

MR. F. D. SPOTSWOOD has taken charge of the Harrodsburg Democrat as editor and business manager and in the last issue of that paper publishes a neat salutation. Mr. Spotswood has demonstrated his ability to run a newspaper in his acknowledged success with the Midway Clipper and we are glad to know that his powers will be brought into wider scope. The former editors of the Democrat retire to their respective professions with the satisfaction of knowing that they have done their work well.

THE whole expense of running the government of the State of Delaware is but $130,000. The State has no penitentiary to speak of and its jails are nearly always empty. Could any argument be stronger in favor of the whipping post law, which prevails there? The lash is beyond a doubt a great preventive of crime.

GEN. WOLFORD was renominated for Congress in the 11th and Tom Robertson in the 4th Saturday.

THE unreliable New York Sun has come out flat footed for Butler, hoping by that means to encompass the election of Blaine. Cleveland refused to appoint some friend of the editor to an important position and hence its hostility. It tries to wiggle out of its former abuse of Butler by saying that whatever it may have found fault with him about, it was wiped out in 1876, since which it has been profoundly grateful to him for his course at the period of the Presidential Fraud and for the desire he then publicly manifested to have that peerless wrong set right and to have Mr. Tilden installed in the place which Mr. Hayes and the republicans stole from him. It is charged in some quarters that some of the republican campaign fund has taken a hand in directing the course of the luminary, which is alleged shines for all.

THIS is the best we have seen on the Mother Hubbard. We would not strike a woman under any circumstances, but we must acknowledge that when we see a girl wearing one of those horrible garments known as "Mother Hubbards," we feel inclined to give her a belt.

An Explanation.

[To the Editor of the Interior Journal.]

As an act of justice to a very worthy organization, of which our citizens are proud, please say in your next issue that the party which went from here to Williamsburg on the night of the 23d, to play a match game, was not the regular nine, but a lot of picked up characters, who didn't understand the first principles of the great game of ball.

—In a row at Shelby City Saturday night Eliza Lay was shot in the leg, it is supposed by a person between whom and himself an old grudge existed. About 30 shots were fired.

Talbot, who went West with her, returned Saturday evening. Father Hugh J. Brady, of Louisville, was here from Tuesday till Friday, the guest of his cousin, Father A. J. Brady, of St. Paul's church. A dispatch received Monday morning announced the serious, if not hopeless, illness of Mrs. Annie Johnson at her home in Georgetown. Mrs. Johnson was formerly Miss Annie McAllister, of Stanford and this place.

—There was a "wine supper" at the Faulconer House in Danville last Saturday night. The Faulconer House is situated on the corner of Second and Main sts., south side, and Louis Faulconer, a saddle-colored gentleman, is the host. To begin again, there was a wine supper, and many sounds of revelry by night and the shady portion of Boyle's capital had gathered there, and the beauty and chivalry, and bright the lamps shone over fair (?) women and brave men. A thousand hearts beat happily and rumor bath it that the hearts of Louis and an Abyssinian maiden from Perryville were happier by several throbs than any of the rest of 'em. By and by the revelry began to be too much for the maiden, her eyes shone with an Oriental lustre and the blush on her cheek was as red as the blood of the vine. Louis thought a little fresh air would be beneficial to the suffering fair one, so he procured a horse and buggy and he and she lit out. They drove out the Lancaster pike and what they said and did was witnessed only by the silvery stars. Time passed on and they were returning and had reached a point this side the toll-gate, when they were met by Mess. Bob Taylor and Joe Gowen, American citizens of African descent, who took the horse and buggy and women away from

Louis and belabored him with the buggy whip and left him to wend his lonely way to town alone. The colored population are much excited over the affair and many amusing incidents hardly suitable for publication are related in connection with it, and as the police court is to investigate the whole business, they must all come out.

PAINT LICK, GARRARD COUNTY.

—Eb Cooley shot his cousin, Bill Cooley in the thigh at Devil's Den Sunday.

—The democrats here are organizing a Cleveland and Hendricks Club.

A SPOON boy stole a horse from church Sunday but he was caught and his back literally worn out for it.

—The colored Baptist Association convened at Lowell on Thursday and continued its good work until after Sunday. Eminent divines from all parts of the country assembled. There was a dense crowd during the meeting and one brother became so happy he got to shouting and came over breaking his neck.

A negro bearing a striking resemblance to a baboon was arrested here Thursday by an officer from Richmond for stealing a horse and buggy from a Mr. Letcher at that place. He had hired to work on the section, had just put in one day's work and at night said that he had to go and see his brother, but before he got off he was over taken.

—Mr. E. H. Batson has sold his stock of goods to Mr. John Smith, a merchant of Cythiana, and Littleton Rice, of this place. Mr. Smith comes well recommended and has all the appearance of a real gentleman. Mr. Rice is well known to the people here as a moral, industrious and clever young man and the two will make a strong firm.

—William Howe is very low with fever. Several other of our citizens have been on the sick list. A little child of Milton Smith died Thursday. D. G. Slaughter and his family have gone to the Dripping Springs to spend a week or two. Miss Lillie McClary, of Lexington, is the guest of Mrs. C. Shumate. Mr. S. M. Engleman, of Lincoln, was the guest of his brother, C. B. Engleman, Saturday and Sunday.

—We had a terrific rain and thunder storm Friday evening, accompanied by a great deal of lightning, which struck and set fire to a large sycamore tree in the limits of town. It was on Dr. Spillman's farm and the only democratic tree on his place. It is the one under which Durham and McCreary sent up their petitions a short time ago. The democrats speak under the shade of its branches every year. Some of our republicans say that it is a certain fact now that Blaine will be our next president, as the Almighty will not even let a democratic tree stand.

A party of young folks started out horseback riding Sunday evening. The horse of Miss Alice Ward became frightened and reared up, throwing her off, but providentially she was not seriously hurt. The young ladies were riding horses and the young men were riding oxen, two on each mule, except our noblest department, who has some religious scruples about riding a mule. He cut a victory stick and walked.

—Jas. Rothman, operator at Sinks, complains of not seeing the sun during the day but once, and then but a few minutes at 7 o'clock. We do not think he should complain of this at all, but remember what the old minister said to his daughter when he departed for Africa: "Let there be clouds enough over your life to cause a glorious sunset." If Charley remains at Sinks he certainly will be entitled to a glorious sunset.

—Rev. J. A. Limerick and wife, of London, are visiting the families of G. B. Cook and J. T. Roberts. Mr. Limerick preached Saturday evening and Sunday morning at the Livingston church. Miss May Hackney, of Pleasant Valley, is also visiting them. Mr. Kirwin, of Louisville, has been visiting his brother, Joe Kirwin, time keeper for the Henderson Bridge Co. at Rockcastle Quarry. Vernon a visit Sunday. Mr. A. G. Newsum and wife, the Shawans, Ky., were here Sunday for the purpose of securing horses for their family. Mr. N. expects to be the Kentucky Central depot agent and operator, commencing work September 1st, at which time the K. C. will put on additional trains.
